

"A land ethic...reflects the existence of an ecological conscience, and this in turn reflects a conviction of individual responsibility for the health of the land. Health is the capacity of the land for self-renewal. Conservation is our effort to understand and preserve this capacity." -- Aldo Leopold

Please join us for
The 5th Annual Aldo & Estella Leopold Residency Lecture

Andrew Gulliford

Understanding Shepherding, Sheepmen, and Their Impacts on the Land

Andrew Gulliford is a professor of history and Environmental Studies at Fort Lewis College in Durango, Colorado. He teaches courses on wilderness, national parks, Western history, and environmental history. He is the author of America's Country Schools, Sacred Objects and Sacred Places: Preserving Tribal Traditions, and Boomtown Blues: Colorado Oil Shale, which won the Colorado Book Award. He edited Preserving Western History, which was voted one of the best books on the Southwest by the Tucson-Pima County Library. His most recent book Outdoors in the Southwest: An Adventure Anthology won the 2014 Arizona/New Mexico Book Award in the category of nature/environment and the Colorado Book Award for best anthology.

6:30 - 8:30 pm Wednesday 27 July 2016
Harwood Museum

The purpose of the Aldo & Estella Leopold Residency is to provide an inspiring retreat for distinguished and emerging writers to reflect and to create in the physical context of Leopold's "Mi Casita" in the Carson National Forest of northern New Mexico and in the intellectual context of land ethics. Our mission is to raise the cultural awareness of the relevancy of Aldo Leopold's ideas in addressing the pressing environmental issues of our time. For more information please go to: www.aldoleopold.org.

Sponsored by

With generous support from
Jerome Ginsburg and Steven Foster